Conciliar Press Announces Redesign of Again Magazine

Thursday, May 6, 2004

BEN LOMOND, CA—Conciliar Press, a leading Orthodox Christian publisher, has announced a major redesign of Again, their flagship quarterly periodical. Again is an Orthodox Christian magazine proclaiming the power of the ancient Christian faith as it is lived today. The mission of Again is to explore the beauty of the Way of Christ and to confront the challenges facing His followers in the 21st century. Again is crisp, readable, balanced, and upbeat—ideal for both Orthodox believers desiring a deeper relationship with God, and for inquirers interested in encountering the enduring wisdom and spiritual tradition of the Orthodox Church.

Again features an impressive line-up of Orthodox talent, including well-known figures like Fr. Peter Gillquist, Frederica Mathewes-Green, Fr. Thomas Hopko, Patrick Henry Reardon, Fr. Michael Oleksa, and Bishop Kallistos Ware, as well as popular new writers like Terry Mattingly, Fr. Mel Webber, Fr. John Oliver, and Matthew Gallatin. The magazine tackles the tough issues facing society and the Orthodox Church today with enthusiasm and hope, while balancing these timely considerations with inspiring personal stories, accounts of key figures and events from the Orthodox tradition, interviews, pastoral reflections, meditations on Scripture, and more.

The new full color design for Again will debut in June, and is being produced in part by one of America's best Orthodox graphic designers, Cameron Thorp. The issue will feature articles on the phenomenon of enthusiasm for Orthodoxy among young Americans, particularly on campuses across the country. It will include new articles by Fr. Peter Gillquist, Frederica Mathewes-Green, Fr. Luke Veronis and others.

Staking out a position in the public square of American publishing as a clear voice for historic Orthodoxy, Conciliar Press expects the redesigned Again to contribute to the growing vigor and appeal of the American Orthodox Church. Frederica Mathewes-Green, an award-winning author, syndicated journalist, and radio commentator, says "Again magazine is the front porch of American Orthodoxy, the place we gather from all our different backgrounds to discuss issues, learn new things, and encourage each other." Author Jim Forest notes that "Again gives its readers a month-by-month experience of Orthodox unity. Thank God for this lively and beautiful journal!"

Conciliar Press, based in central California, is dedicated to communicating historic Orthodox Christianity to today's world through the internet, printed page, icons, and music.
