"SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT"

Published October 1988 in the Antiochian Christian Archdiocese Christian Education Newsletter

The emphasis in today's classrooms on the "process" of learning rather than the "product" has revolutionized education. What students are doing, feeling and experiencing before they produce a product is of prime importance. This is the crux of Christian Education as well. Attitudes and interaction are especially important in the church school atmosphere.

It is for this reason that the regional Christian Education coordinators and the National Festivals Coordinator worked together this year (1987) to provide guidelines and suggestions for working with the Creative Arts, Writing and Poetry Festivals.

The emphasis should first be the process. The students (teachers, parents) must commit themselves to wanting to learn more about Christ and the Church striving to become closer to God. If this is not the intent, it is better not to participate in the Festivals.

Some ideas, guidelines and suggestions follow to help you focus on this process.

- 1) a) Writing, Poetry and Art Folders - Have individual folders for each child in the classroom that are related in some way to the Festival Topic. (The Festivals work should enhance the curriculum not replace it). At the end of the year, have each child choose the work they would like to submit.
- b) Parish Display - Publish and display all works in your parish before submitting to the region. Have a sharing time where students can read, show and explain their work.
- 2) Take-home packets - Send home a prepared folder outlining topics and ideas to help parents work with their children at home. It will be an enlightening experience for all.
- 3) Cooperative Learning Project - allow groups to plan and work on projects together. The positive interaction, attitudes and ideas produced are amazing in themselves.

Superintendents should train teachers how to successfully implement these ideas so students are enriched by the process. Regional Christian Education Coordinators can be contacted for more information and assistance with these strategies.
